SCHOOL ROOMS ARE SWAMPED

Opening of Public Schools Shows
Such an Increase in Enrollment that Enlargement of High School Building Must Come Soon.

At the opening of the Gettysburg public schools this morning the teachers, principal and school board found themselves face to face with a serious condition in the largely increased enrollment in every room and the lack of facilities to take care of the new pupils.

In the High School an entering class of fifty two brought up the total enrollment to 139 or nine more than on the opening day last year. Even last year it was found necessary to put in more desks in the assembly room of this building and now nine more must be installed, using up every available inch of space in that room. Next year, it is stated by the school authorities, it will be absolutely necessary to have more room and the best method of securing this is agreed to be the enlargement of the present building which was built with the idea in view of adding a second story over the present large room.

Of the 139 pupils now enrolled at the High School building thirty two are from the surrounding townships. The School Board will reap a return of almost $900 from these rural pupils this year, an item which allows of an enlarged course and better equipment than it would be possible for the directorate to furnish without this money, and it is believed that it will be the best sort of business to prepare the school authorities to admit all such pupils who may apply.

It is very apparent that next year's entering class will be even larger than this year for the Eighth Grade now has the largest enrollment in its history and the usual proportion of these boys and girls will go ahead with their school training and enter with the Freshman class next fall.

At the Meade Building the Grammar schools, with Miss Elizabeth Rummel principal, are being conducted after the department plan, the pupils gathering in an assembly room and then going into their various classes. The big room, in years gone by used for entertainments, has been fully equipped with new single desks for this purpose and the plan is expected to add materially to the efficiency of these grades.

The Meade Building now has every grade from Primary up to the High School and the pupils of that section of town may attend without having to travel the distance which would be necessary if they had to go to the High Street building. Miss Stoops is teaching the Primary Grade in this building and has a newly equipped room for her work.

At the High Street building, which includes the grades from First to Sixth, inclusive, the same overcrowded condition reported elsewhere prevails and in Miss McGrew's room, the Fifth Grade, there are nine more pupils than the number for which accommodations were provided. Some arrangement will be made to care for the overflow.

With the rapid increase in the population of Gettysburg has come not only increase in the enrollment but also greater efficiency in the schools and Gettysburg's school system is now one of the prides of the town. The faculty throughout, with the exception of the High and Colored schools, is the same as last year. Note has been made of Miss Braxton, the new teacher of the Colored School, who succeeds Miss Curry.

In the High School William Day, the teacher of manual training has tendered his resignation and the school opens with no one to fill that position. The School Board has this vacancy under consideration and expects to fill it in the very near future. Miss Helen Day, of Baltimore, the new Domestic Science teacher, was also unable to be present this morning owing to sickness. The new room for this department is being fitted up in most attractive style and the girls attending the school will have the finest sort of advantages in this line which can be procured with the means at the hands of the School Board. Miss Helen Kendlehart has the place occupied last year by Miss Fritchey but the remainder of the faculty are the same as in 1912-1913.

The compulsory vaccination law is enforced here and the parents and pupils co-operate cheerfully with the Board so that the town physicians have been busy with the work. The attendance law will not be enforced

FAMILY TROUBLE AIRED IN COURT

After Long Recital of Grievances
Husband Decides he Still Cares for his Wife and they are Reunited. Five Divorce Cases.

"With all her faults I love her still" was the fitting close of the case of non-support and surety of the peace brought against Jacob Starnier by his wife. The trial lasted nearly three hours on Saturday afternoon and, in spite of the protests of the Court and tip-staves, kept the room in a continual state of merriment.

It seems that Jacob Starnier was arrested on May 5th, charged with non-support and profane language toward his wife, who was admitted by all to be a very industrious and hard-working woman. On the other hand it was developed at the trial that she was the "man of the place", as she collected all the funds from her boarders, of which there were three, dictating when her husband should work and when he should not and, according to his story, forcing him to keep a bicycle and become expert in the art of cycling in order that when he wanted to go to work, or come to town, it was not necessary for him to walk.

Each side was strengthened by the testimony of five or six witnesses, and when all had been heard the audience was perplexed to know what would happen. Judge Swope suggested that both injured parties adjourn to the waiting room and try and adjust the differences themselves and again return to their home and live peacefully. They succeeded and the case came to a close with the husband declaring that, despite all her shortcomings, his wife still retained the bulk of his affections.

The costs were divided.

Other business transacted Saturday afternoon included the following:

Wm. Arch McClean Esq. was appointed commissioner to take testimony in the divorce proceedings of Nellie Cason vs Brooks Cason.

William McSherry Esq. was appointed commissioner to take testimony in the divorce proceedings of Ambrose T. Noel vs Margaret C. Noel.

S. S. Neely Esq. was appointed commissioner to take testimony in the divorce proceedings of Jesse Scott vs Cora Scott.

Subpoenas were awarded returnable November 10 in the divorce proceedings of Sarah E. Stiles vs Arthur A. Stiles, and John C. Orndorff vs Emma E. Orndorff.

Petition of Harry Haar, administrator of the estate of Susan S. Haar, deceased, for order to sell real estate. Petition granted and bond in the sum of $4000 approved.

Return of sale of Charles M. Wolf, executor of A. M. Dittman, deceased, confirmed.

FOR YORK FAIR

Enlarge Building for Annual York County Fair.

Improvements are being made to the York County Fair grounds in preparation for the 1913 exhibition, which will be held October 6 to 10, and will cost many thousands of dollars. The Horticultural Hall is being enlarged to twice its former size and a new and larger vaudeville stage is being erected on the quarter stretch. According to the Board of Managers special attention will be paid to exhibits that will interest the farmer. There will be several educational exhibits and more products of the soil will be placed on exhibition than ever before.

WASHINGTON BOY SCOUTS IN TOWN

Youngsters in Khaki Attract Attention in Gettysburg. Story of Work in the Slums is Told in St. James Lutheran Chapel.

The fifteen Washington Boy Scouts arrived in Gettysburg Saturday on scheduled time and have attracted much attention since they reached here and pitched their tents in the Johns' field.

They are making their 200 mile hike in "heavy marching order;" that is, they carry their blankets, food for a day, and equipment for one night. Three hospitable tents and a commissary tent, loaned by the War Department, have provided accommodations while on the march and will furnish sleeping quarters while the company is on the battlefield.

These boys left the city as "tenderfeet" but when they arrive in Washington it is expected that they will be first-class scouts, as upon the hike they receive instruction in tracking, camping, cooking, swimming, and all other necessary requirements to produce the "finished article."

Sunday night Mr. Kline gave a lecture in St. James Chapel on "Rescue Work in the City Slums." Mr. Kline told many interesting anecdotes of mission work in New York, citing several remarkable examples of regenerated "bums" and women of the street. He also described the work of the Gospel Mission in Washington, with which the scout troop is connected. Lunches may be bought at the mission's counter for one cent, and dinner for five cents. The lunch room is so economically managed that these prices almost exactly pay the cost of food and service.

The mission also supplies the poor with fuel at nearly cost. Mr. Kline said that the regular dealers divide the cord of wood into a thousand little bundles which they sell for three cents each, or two for five cents, making the cost of wood to the very poor twenty-five or thirty dollars a cord. The mission hires unemployed men to cut the wood and tie it into small bundles, which are sold at nearly cost, thereby not only furnishing the poor with cheap fuel but giving employment to men who cannot find it elsewhere.

The mission furnishes lodging to the homeless for ten cents a night, but if the applicant is unable to pay he is received free of charge.

MISS STELLA HORWEDEL

DEATH FOLLOWS FALL FROM PORCH

Sad Accident Near Abbottstown when Railing Gives Way. Perform Delicate but Unsuccessful Operation to Save Life.

Mrs. W. M. Lauer, wife of a merchant of near Abbottstown, in a fall from a balcony struck her head against a fence, sustaining a fracture of the skull and concussion of the brain. An operation of extreme delicacy was performed by Dr. W. F. Bacon, Dr. H. B. King and Dr. E. S. Stambaugh, in an effort to save her life but she died the following morning at 9:20. Mrs. Lauer, who was aged 66 years, did not regain consciousness from the time of her accident until death ensued.

The accident occurred at 8:30 o'clock Friday morning. Mrs. Lauer, while cleaning the second floor, went to the balcony and leaned over the rail. The railing broke beneath her weight. She pitched forward several feet and in alighting, her head struck a fence. A six inch board of the fence was splintered. From the fence Mrs. Lauer bounded backward to a cement pavement.

A daughter, Carrie Lauer, witnessed the accident and, calling her father, went to her mother's assistance. Dr. E. S. Stambaugh, who was only a short distance away at the time, was called in and Drs. Bacon and King of York were summoned and hurried there in an automobile. They returned to York after the operation had been performed. The blood clot on the brain was removed and the fracture of the skull reduced.

She leaves her husband and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Michael Bott, of La Bott; and these children, Luther, who was a professor at the York County Academy; Walter, who teaches in Minnesota, and who is now on his way home and Miss Carrie, who was graduated from York Collegiate Institute last term, at home; sisters and brothers, Peter Bott, La Bott; Carrier, Fannie and Annie, La Bott, and Mrs. Jacob Lauer, Emigs Mill.

TO INSPECT PUPILS

Health Department will Examine Pupils of Country Schools.

Pennsylvania's Department of Health will begin the work of inspection of 350,000 school children in 1851 fourth-class school districts, the plan being to almost double the work of the last school term.

Dr. Samuel G. Dixon, State Commissioner of Health, will name about 900 inspectors to carry on this work, which will embrace all of the rural districts in the State and some of the more populated in sixty-six of the counties and it is contemplated that the work will be finished within six weeks. In recent years these inspections have shown that children in rural districts show as large a percentage of physical defects as those in the three classes of cities and that the sanitary conditions in the country schools need much attention, being in many instances far inferior to those in the cities.

VERY NEWEST IDEA IN BAGS

Black Moire and Taffeta Embroidered
In Tiny Flowers is the Latest Thing.

The very newest idea in bags is the black moire or taffeta bag, embroidered in tiny blue and pink flowers. These bags are oval in shape, slightly gathered into the frames, which may be of silver or covered with the moire. The handles are of moire ribbon, and many of them have jeweled or silver slides. They are just as pretty as they can be, with a certain oldtimey air that gives them a cachet all their own. The shape is repeated in bags of black taffeta, plain-striped in white, but they are not nearly so effective as the flowered bags.

Some of these bags are quite imposing in size, while others are of medium size. The all-black taffeta bags in some instances are finished with a pleating of the taffeta about an inch to two inches in width, and one oval-shaped black moire bag had a tiny Swiss watch inset in the front. They are the watch was, it was guaranteed that it would give the proper warning to the loitering shopper.

Another quaint retinue of other days is of moire in black and in the dark reds and browns and blues, with an elaborate embroidery of cut steel beads. It is more unusual than the beaded bags of other seasons, but not so effective.

To carry with white linen and tub dresses there are bags of white kid embroidered in the Algerian colors—blues and greens and reds. The design is a conventional one, but the color schemes are well developed and the effect is very pleasing, particularly with an all-white costume. Many of these bags are displayed in the new oval shape, while others are long and narrow, in the envelope shape of last season. Both the chain and the leather handles are shown with these bags, and many of them are fitted with change purses and vanity accessories. The bags of metallic tissue are also in vogue and will be carried with dressy afternoon frocks of net and lace.

SLEEPING SCREEN IS HANDY

Is an Excellent Substitute for the Stand When Space Will Not Permit the Latter.

A small bedroom stand, on which matches, candlesticks and one's watch are within ready reach during the night, must sometimes be omitted from the tiny apartment house bedroom, already filled by bed, dresser and wardrobe. An excellent substitute for the convenient stand is the handy sleeping screen, which is a small, folding, portable screen, which may be tucked away. Such a screen may be made from a small clothes horse, such as is sometimes used in the nursery; or, if there is a direct draught on the bed from a window the screen may be a trifle higher—just high enough to protect the head of the sleeper without keeping out the air.

Cover the screen with cretonne matching the hangings of the bedroom, first treating the wood to a coat of white enamel. The pockets are attached to the inner side and in them may be tucked one's bedroom slippers, a small electric flashlight, a box of safety matches, a handkerchief or other things that may be needed during the night, such as sleeping powder.

WOMAN DEAD; BROTHER DYING

Found Unconscious in Home After Dismissing Servants.

POISON IS SUSPECTED

Relatives, Neighbors and Former Employees Unable to Throw Light on the Mysterious Case.

Philadelphia, Sept. 1.—"We will not need you any longer, as we are going away to the mountains on Sept. 1," said Miss Jane Jamison, about sixty years old, as she recently dismissed several domestics at the beautiful Jamison home in Hare's lane, Radnor, overlooking one of the loveliest valleys along the main line.

"You needn't cut the grass, Daniel, except around the house," she said at the same time to her gardener, Daniel Gallagher. "We are going away on Sept. 1."

With her brother, George Jamison, about sixty-one years old, Miss Jamison occupied the great house with the domestics. All the latter went off to church on Sunday. When they returned they found Miss Jamison almost in the throes of death in the living room, and lying near her, helpless and unconscious, was her aged brother. Doctors were called, and after applying emergency aid rushed the aged pair to the Bryn Mawr hospital, where Miss Jamison died a short time later.

The hospital authorities said that a corrosive solution which she had drunk had snuffed out her life. Her brother still lies at the hospital in a serious condition, although the physicians have hopes of saving his life.

Relatives of the Jamisons denied the rumor that Mr. Jamison was suffering from strychnine poisoning. Neither the physicians who first were summoned nor those at the hospital would discuss the tragic death of the woman or the cause of the man's condition. Relatives, however, said that the aged brother collapsed because of the shock caused by the fate of his sister.

Coroner Neville, of Montgomery county, was notified of Miss Jamison's tragic death, because the Bryn Mawr hospital, where she breathed her last, is in that county, although the Jamison home is in Delaware county. He is now making an investigation.

The Radnor police at once commenced to probe the circumstances surrounding the death of the woman and the serious condition of the man.

Mystery, complete and baffling, shrouds the cause of the tragedy, and all those who might throw some light upon it kept their silence. Instead of dissipating the atmosphere of conjecture which surrounds the occurrence, seemed to make it only more dense.

It is not known where the corrosive solution was obtained. Miss Jamison and her brother were in a cheerful frame of mind and their demeanor did not bespeak gloom. No reason why either of them should have taken poison is known to their relatives.

COL. ROOSEVELT ROBBED

Discharged negro Servant Stole Over $1000 Worth of Jewelry.

Oyster Bay, N. Y., Sept. 1.—Most of the jewelry stolen from Colonel Theodore Roosevelt's home on Sagamore Hill has been recovered.

Detectives are done with searching the nooks and crannies of the colonel's estate and George R. Parker, the recently discharged negro servant, was taken to Mineola and locked up in the jail there to await the action of the grand jury.

The value of the stolen watch fobs and jewels only totalled a little more than $1000, although Colonel Roosevelt prized some of them far beyond any sum of money. Some of the stolen valuables were found hidden away in the Roosevelt home.

MRS. VANDERBILT'S BED AFIRE

Narrowly Escaped Serious Injury From Electric Heater.

Carlsbad, Sept. 1.—Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt, Jr., narrowly escaped being seriously injured when her hotel in this city.

Feeling cool, she placed an electric heating apparatus in the bed and connected it with the electric current of the bedroom. This current feeds not only the hotel, but also two funiculars and is of 220 volts.

A short circuit resulted and the bed caught fire. Fortunately Mrs. Vanderbilt's cries for help soon brought assistance and she escaped unhurt except for shock.

Missouri Growing Fast.

Jefferson City, Mo., Sept. 1.—The state board of equalization fixed the valuation of property in Missouri at $1,750,000,000. This is an increase of $200,000,000 over the property assessment of last year. Railroads and other public utilities are valued at $188,700,000, an increase of nearly $5,000,000.

Thieves Imperil Lives.

Woodbury, N. J., Sept. 1.—Gas meter thieves have been busy in the lower part of this city, with the result that a number of families came near being suffocated. In some instances during the visits the lead pipes were cut leaving the gas flowing.

VISCOUNT HALDANE.

British Jurist In America to Address Lawyers.

Viscount Haldane, lord high chancellor of England, arrived in New York on the Lusitania. A reception committee from the American Bar association met the distinguished English barrister at the pier. Lord Haldane will deliver an address on Monday before the association, when it holds its annual meeting in Montreal, Canada. He is accompanied by his sister, Miss Elizabeth Haldane. While in the United States Lord Haldane will visit West Point.

DOCTOR SAYS HE CAN MAKE GIANTS

Ductless Glands Can Also Put Off Old Age.

Philadelphia, Sept. 1.—Dr. Frank Starkey, of 2050 Chestnut street, declares he can make the physical man a superman.

Dr. Starkey has just completed some unusual experiments on guinea pigs by the use of ductless glands and has been able to make the little creatures grow almost three times their normal size. He asserts that he could take a small boy and achieve results which, while they would not be approximately the same, would at least be unusual.

Dr. Starkey's experiments with the ductless glands of lower animals have been watched with interest by physicians all over the country. About nine months ago he secured a litter of normal infant guinea pigs. Each pig weighed about the same. At the end of nine months the pigs in which the glands had been injected weighed almost three times as much as the healthy but untreated pigs.

That Dr. Starkey's discovery may revolutionize things in the medical world is admitted by many physicians who are in a position to know. Dr. Starkey combines the four principal glands by making them into a liquid. He has used them successfully in fighting disease. Not only can a race of giants be bred by the use of the new discovery, but it is declared that old age can be put off for some length of time by the extract of glands.

PARROT SHRIEKS MURDER

Bird Identifies Men Who Stabbed Its Owner.

Philadelphia, Sept. 1.—Shrieks of "Murder! Murder!" were borne to the ears of two policemen on the night air as they were standing in South Front street.

They rushed across to a dingy little house, where they heard sounds of a scuffle. The strange yelling continued until they entered a back room, where they found Joseph Kaluk lying on the floor with a stab wound over his stomach.

Standing on a chair was a parrot with a broken wing. The bird took up Kaluk's cry of murder and kept it up until a sack was put over his head. Kaluk was sent to the hospital and Alexander Kundre and Joseph Bofinsky were arrested. The parrot's head was uncovered and he was confronted with the two prisoners. He took a good look at them and again yelled "Murder! Murder!" They were both held. They fought over payment for drinks.

BALKS AT SPIRITUALISM

Suit For Divorce Follows When Man Refuses to Transfer Property.

St. Louis, Sept. 1.—Stephen P. Garlock filed suit for divorce in which he charged that his second wife deceived him into a spiritualistic seance, where she called up the spirit of his first wife, who advised him to transfer his property to his second wife. He refused to transfer the property, he said, and then his living wife called him names.

Boy Bandit Flees by Auto.

Minneapolis, Minn., Sept. 1.—Eugene Callender, an alleged "boy burglar," confined in the criminal ward of the city hospital here because of a broken leg, escaped by jumping from his window and into an automobile which had just driven up and which carried him away to safety. Callender's injury was received in a previous attempt to escape.

MAY INCREASE INCOME TAX

Democratic Insurgents Force Revision on Leaders.

THE LAST TARIFF FIGHT

The Senate Committee on Banking Will Take Up Currency Reform Bill Hearing Tomorrow.

Washington, Sept. 1.—The burst of Democratic insurgency which lifted the tariff revision struggle out of the routine channels of the senate during the past week is to have its final hearing in a caucus of senate Democrats.

The Democratic members of the finance committee, who have undertaken to compose the differences in the party ranks and devise compromise income tax provisions to meet the demands of the "insurgents," worked over those and other features of the tariff bill and will be ready to report to the caucus.

As the result of a fight led by Senators Reed, Vandaman, Thompson, Arhurst and others of the so-called "insurgent" forces, the bill will be revised as to its income tax provisions, and a heavier tax will be levied on large incomes. This change will be against the judgment of many of the party leaders who helped to frame the bill and who point out that its proposed four per cent tax on incomes over $100,000 is as high as the tax in other countries; but the "insurgents" held enough votes to control the situation and to force the adoption of some of the radical amendments proposed by Senators LaFollette, Blawie, Borah and others.

It is expected that the caucus will adopt a rate graduated up to five per cent "additional tax on incomes above $100,000, with graduations from that figure up to seven per cent on those above $500,000. As this latter tax would strike only a few incomes in this country, many of the insurgents insist upon a greater increase after the $100,000 figure is reached, so that the tax would be ten per cent or even more above $500,000. To the "additional tax" would be added the regular "normal tax" of one per cent.

The income tax fight is the last big contest before the final passage of the tariff bill. Many items are still to be considered, including the proposed tax on trades in cotton futures, but with the settlement of the income tax rates it is expected that the tariff bill will proceed rapidly to its final passage. Its first reading has been completed and some of the senate leaders still believe that its final passage will occur next Saturday.

Meantime preparations are under way for opening up the currency reform fight in the senate at an early date. While consideration of the new bill has not yet started in the house the senate committee on banking and currency will begin hearings tomorrow with representatives of the American Bankers' association as the witnesses. Bankers who joined in the recent conference at Chicago and who adopted resolutions demanding many changes in the currency bill are to be heard at length beginning tomorrow.

House leaders expect consideration of the currency reform measure to begin late in the week.

FASTS 50 DAYS AT 96

Grieving Mourner Likely to Break the World's Record.

Harrisburg, Pa., Sept. 1.—William Beidleman, who lacks only three months of being ninety-six years old, completed his fiftieth day of fasting.

Throughout that period only two small bits of toasted bread have passed into his stomach, but he has drunk quantities of ice water.

Beidleman is fasting merely because he does not want to eat. He has been grieving, however, over the death of his sister-in-law some weeks ago. His health seems not to be impaired to any extent by his abstinence.

If Beidleman should pass the next eleven days without eating he will break the world's record for fasting. The longest fast on record is one of sixty days, which Van R. Wilcox underwent eight years ago at his home in West Fairview, near Harrisburg. Wilcox fasted to cure himself of chronic indigestion and succeeded.

Fatal Fall Spares Bones.

Altoona, Pa., Sept. 1.—Making a mistake while about to descend the steps of the Ninth street bridge, Ellwood P. Scotten, aged seventy years, plunged over the railing, thirty-five feet and was so badly injured that he died several hours later. Oddly enough not one of his bones was broken, in internal hurts causing death.

A Miser's Hoard

By M. QUAD

Copyright, 1913, by Associated Literary Press.

Moses Taylor must have been, well over fifty years old when he arrived in the village of Noblesstown and brought his reputation as a miser with him. He bought an old shack of a house, and paid spot cash for it and then opened business.

Once a week Moses bought about 30 cents' worth of meat and groceries. He was surly and had little to say to men.

By and by Moses Taylor became a fixture and belonged to the town. No one cared whether he lived or died, and it was generally believed that he had no relatives. The speculation about him and his hoard never died out. His wealth had been placed at $20,000 in gold when he first came. If it ever showed signs of reduction a wire fence man would come along and say:

"Gentlemen, don't you fool yourselves. Moses Taylor has at least a hundred thousand in bright yellow boys planted in his cellar."

Then there would be a higher respect for Moses, and the wire fence man would be looked upon as a sort of hero.

The miser's shack was in a suburb. The nearest house was forty rods away. While its inmates did not neighbor with the old man, they got into the habit of keeping track of him. They looked for the smoke of his chimney in the morning and for the disappearance of his lean candle at an early hour in the evening. It was a sort of guardianship without meaning to be. It had gone on for years and years, when one November morning there was no chimney smoke. Moses had been seen the afternoon of the day previous, and it was noticed that he was very feeble.

After a wait of several hours men went over to the shack and pushed open the door and found the old man dead in his chair. As if he had planned the thing to be a bit dramatic, his stiff fingers held a two dollar bill. The proper authorities were notified and took charge. At the coroner's inquest the doctors gave it as their opinion that the old man had died from the want of proper food and care.

If a Fourth of July and a circus and a presidential election had hit Noblesstown on the same day there would have been no more excitement than over the taking off of the old miser. Exclamations and suggestions and comments flew fast.

"He must have made a will," observed Rev. Barnes, "and I have hopes that he left a legacy to my church to pay off the mortgage."

The Rev. Barnes had collected several hundred dollars for the heathen, but had never carried old Moses so much as a cracker.

A schoolmaster expected at least $500 because he had once bowed to the old man.

A certain widow expected that much or more because she had looked over her gate at him as she passed.

One of the merchants had sold Moses a pair of shoes at cost upon an occasion, and he moved about whispering: "Those old misers never forget one who has befriended them. I think I can count on at least $400—I think I can."

It had been taken for a certainty that Moses had no relatives; but, land alive, how they came tumbling over each other as soon as the newspapers got to work!

It took the full force of the sheriff of the county to hold the people off while the proper officials searched the old shack.

A three room shack, almost without furniture, was soon searched. Of course the first thing was to find the will. No will—not even an old letter, not even a memorandum. If will there was or had been one of the two lawyers in town must have drawn it, as old Moses had never left the town after his arrival.

Neither of the lawyers had drawn a will. There was more talk about graft, and one or two were bold enough to say that the searchers had found the will and pocketed it.

Now for the hoard. It was estimated by the villagers at $150,000 and by the relatives at $250,000. Six or seven fistfuls of gold took place before the hoard was compromised on $200,000.

No gold! No greenbacks! "But there must be gold!" yelled the out-siders.

"We have made a careful search and found only the $2 he had in his hand when he died."

"It must be hidden in the walls."

"Then come and find it."

Not a man got into that house without being thumped, and not a man got out until thumped some more. The searchers were searched, and then the shack was torn limb from limb, so to say. Not a dollar—not a shilling—not even a copper penny!

"But where has it gone?" was demanded.

The answer didn't come then, but a year later, when a stranger visited Noblesstown who had known Moses Taylor for years and years. Moses had about $500 cash after buying the shack. He had lived on the sum all the long years, and the $2 was the last of it. It was likely that he hadn't had a decent meal in all that time. When the explanation was made everybody said: "Oh, that was the way of it, eh? Well, he ought to have been kicked for playing us a dirty trick!"

And that's poor human nature!

Sure Enough.

"So you depend on recognition from posterity?" said Mr. Dustin Stax. "Yes," replied Mr. Penwizzle. "Another generation will recognize my genius." "But how are you going to know whether the opinion of a future generation is any more trustworthy and desirable than that of the present public?"

Poet's Lot a Hard One.

The lives of poets in this callous world have ever been characterized by misery and now a New York man is charged with a modern and most ingenious cruelty to an unfortunate band. He advertised for poems, offering to set them to music, and charging the author $21. But most poets would prefer to be "published" before being set to music.—Springfield Republican.

Our Friends and Enemies.

The things which our friends do with and for us form a part of our lives, for they strengthen and advance our personality. But the things which our enemies devise against us do not form part of our lives; we only experience them, reject them, and guard ourselves against them. As against frost, storms, rain, hail, or any other external inconvenience which may be encountered.—Goethe.

Origin of Two Old Sayings.

"Going to the dogs" comes from the fact, where dogs are scavengers of the streets, and become so unclean as to be unfit to touch; while the expression "Tell it to the marines" used to show disbelief in the truth of a story, arose from the fact that when the marines first went afloat they were naturally rather "green" concerning nautical affairs, and someone who related a very tall yarn was told to "tell it to the marines," the idea being that they could be more easily gulled.

Planked Steak.

Wipe, remove superfluous fat and parboil seven minutes a porterhouse steak or cross-cut of rump steak; cut one and three-fourths inches thick. Butter a plank and arrange a border of duchesse potatoes close to the edge, using a pastry bag and tube. Remove steak to plank, put in a hot oven and bake until steak is cooked and potatoes are browned. Spread steak with butter, sprinkle with salt, pepper and finely chopped parsley. Garnish top of steak with sauted mushroom caps and put around the steak at equal distances halves of small tomatoes sauted in butter and on top of each tomato a circular slice of cucumber, or you can serve small boiled onions, the tiny ones, seasoned with butter, pepper and salt, or peas or slices of carrots.

To Save Juice of Rhubarb Pies.

One of the minor advantages women in the suburbs enjoy at this season is the opportunity to go out in their gardens and cut fresh rhubarb. But how provoking it is to a housekeeper when baking rhubarb pies, or any fruit pies, to have the juice overflow, and what a burnt, sticky mess it makes on the bottom of the oven!

We should like to have all that juice in the pie, and it may be kept in by taking a short piece of uncooked macaroni and inserting it in the pie, like a little chimney stack. Some people make paper funnels to answer the same purpose, but I think the macaroni is better. Of course, it should be removed after the pie is baked, as its presence is purely useful, not ornamental.

Of Valuable Real Estate.

The undersigned will offer for sale September 25, 1913, a farm and mill property, situated at Center Mills, Adams County, Pa., nine miles north of Gettysburg, and one half mile from Center Mills on the P. & R. R.

FARM PROPERTY

The farm consists of 81 acres, more or less, lying in the heart of the fruit belt; about 60 acres of this is the best of farm land, and 21 acres exceptionally fine pasture land and timber, such as locust, walnut, oak, hickory, etc. There is probably about two thousand dollars worth of timber on this property. There is a large dwelling house of 12 rooms and wide Colonial hall, large bank barn, and good wells at both house and barn.

MILL PROPERTY

The mill is known as Center Roller Mills. It has four floors, and consists of three stands of Butler double rolls, and full roller system of most improved type; also one large chopping burr. This is one of the best custom mills in the county, with plenty of grain and feed bought and sold right at the door. Water power strong and constant. Concrete dam and race. Both in excellent condition and chiefly maintained. With the mill there is also a dwelling house of seven rooms, a stable, and a blacksmith shop. There is also a well of good water at this house. As these properties join they will be offered for sale together or separately as the purchaser may desire. Terms will be made to suit purchaser. Any one wishing to buy a property of this kind should not fail to be present at this sale. Reason for selling is old age of owner.

One hundred dry locust posts will be sold at the same time.

SEXTON COMMITS SUICIDE IN CHURCH

Despondent Over Wife's Death, Decides to Join Her.

Flemington, N. J., Sept. 1. — John Boyd, fifty-eight years old, sexton of the Flemington Presbyterian church, committed suicide by inhaling illuminating gas in the kitchen connected with the church.

Boyd went to the church, and without arranging the auditorium for the Sunday services, went to the kitchen, where he made preparations to end his life.

He placed towels in the cracks of the doors leading into the lecture room of the church. Placing a tube into his mouth, he attached it to a gas jet and lay upon the floor to await death.

When he failed to return home his daughter began a search, which resulted in finding his body in the gas filled room by Professor Norman Landis, organist of the church.

Drs. O. H. Sproul and B. S. Fuhrmann were quickly summoned and found that life was extinct. The sexton had been in declining health ever since his wife was taken ill and removed to a hospital in Trenton, where she died ten days ago. Brooding over the loss of his wife is believed to have prompted him to join her in death.

"Well—what do you think of that? I did not know these gowns were worn this far east. I thought Billings, Mont., was the center of such fashions."

"What would you do if a young woman in an X-ray gown passed between you and the sun?"

The secretary sighed and shook his head sadly.

"Ah, young man," he said, "when that happens I most sincerely hope I shall be looking the other way."

500 AMERICANS QUIT MEXICO CITY

Majority Won't Leave Because They Would Lose All.

LIND STILL IN VERA CRUZ

Fleeing Americans Are Taunted by Other Foreigners — Many Resent Wilson's Order.

Mexico City, Mex., Sept. 1.—It is estimated that about 500 Americans arrived in Vera Cruz from the capital, a third of whom went on consular transportation.

Most of those asking for transportation are Americans of means, but unable to realize on their holdings immediately.

The great majority of Americans in Mexico City will remain, believing themselves safe from molestation even in case of intervention. For them to leave the country would entail great loss to them, and the closing of their enterprises would throw thousands out of work.

Americans who arrived from the states of Aguas, Calientes and Guanajuato say that most Americans will leave such outlying districts because of the general impression that intervention is coming. Most of the Americans are leaving the country under protest. Up to the present they have suffered more from the fibes of members of other foreign colonies in Mexico City than by anything said or done by Mexicans.

The other foreigners are taunting them with the declaration that Mexico has outgeneraled Washington, many declaring that Washington is ordering Americans to flee, in the hope of forcing Mexico's hand by fear of anti-American demonstrations. Leading members of the American colony in Mexico City expressed indignation that if the situation is such that Americans should flee the country that Secretary Bryan should forego his Chautauque lectures and President Wilson the pleasures of the "summer White House."

Washington Stands Pat.

Washington, Sept. 1.—Waiting patiently and standing pat is the policy of the administration henceforth regarding the Mexican turmoil. With the advice to Americans in Mexico to get out of the country, and the warning that if their lives are not safeguarded this country will hold the Huerta government strictly responsible, this nation has gone far enough at present, officials declare.

The declaration of Huerta that the lives of Americans were never in danger in those districts where he holds sway, and that all past killings have been due to the rebels, is taken at its face value. Huerta says the warning by the United States was unnecessary; the administration at least hopes so, but is not sorry to have made it.

John Lind, special emissary of the president in Mexico, is still in Vera Cruz, but will return to Mexico City at any time should his presence be necessary in any diplomatic connection. The president and the department of state is in easier and quicker communication with the special envoy while he is in Vera Cruz and he probably will remain there "for some little time."

Mr. Lind has no thought of returning to the United States at this time which possibly upsets the nation that his mission is considered by either him or the administration to have failed. There is still hope among administration officials that he may in due time the belligerent Huerta and Gamboa to make better concessions to the demands of the United States.

Neck Broken When Hit by Missile in Crossing Playground.

Philadelphia, Sept. 1.—Louis Roberts, eleven years old, of 1725 Vine street, was killed at the municipal playground, Nineteenth and Vine streets, by being struck by a batted base ball.

The boy was crossing the playground from the Vine street side and passed the lower end of the lot, where some older boys were playing ball. The ball, batted by Francis Logue, seventeen years old, struck Roberts back of the ear, felling him.

The injured lad was carried into a neighboring house, where he died in twenty minutes. Physicians who examined him said that his neck had been broken.

FATHER AND SON KILLED BY TRAIN

Electric Flyer Hits Pair at May's Landing.

Atlantic City, Sept. 1.—A fast south-bound electric train struck and instantly killed James Miller, Sr., and his son, James, when they were driving across the track at McKee City station, near May's Landing, twenty miles from Atlantic City.

The station prevented the Millers from seeing the approaching train and also barred the motorman's view of the wagon. The bodies were taken to a Pleasantville undertaker's establishment.

The electric train was heavily loaded with excursionists to Atlantic City, among whom a near panic developed when the train suddenly stopped and the cries of the dying men were heard.

Some thought that an attempt to wreck the train had been made and were badly frightened. Others were thrown into fear by the thought of the tragedy in which they had been ignorant participants.

STING A DAY FOR MAYOR

Indianapolis Executive to Try Heroic Cure For Rheumatism.

Indianapolis, Ind., Sept. 1.—Thirteen bees buzzing restlessly in a shipping box came to Mayor Shank's office from J. F. Knight, of Southport, as a cure for the mayor's rheumatism.

"Use one to sting each leg each day and the odd one at the point of greatest pain remaining on the seventh day, and order more if the cure isn't complete," were the directions sent by letter.

VERANDAH IN SUMMER

CAN BE MADE ONE OF THE MOST COMFORTABLE APARTMENTS.

With Appropriate Furnishings It Will Be Found a Constant Delight—Pleasant Place for Breakfast or Luncheon.

Each summer brings more appreciation of living out of doors, of taking what we can of our daily life out into the sweet air and near the refreshing green. The gallery has become very popular and builders pay much attention to it. What was once a narrow, railed-in strip is now practically a room, and a well-furnished room, too. Rugs of grass matting, or rag rugs will not suffer harm from damp, and give the verandah an aspect of comfort. Comfortable chairs of wicker or wood, the latter painted to agree with the house coloring, are set in inviting arrangement. A table with undershelf is ready to hold magazines and fancy work. If a cloth is used, it should be well weighted down at the corners for safety during windy days. If possible, a sofa should be given a place, for out-of-door naps are very restful. The wicker sofas are light and very pretty in appearance, but a rug, or even two, should be at hand, for there should always be one under the sleeper. The chairs having a wide extension on the arm are very practical when one wants to do writing, or to take a cup of tea of an afternoon. Cushions, covers for chairs, and lounge should be of wash material. Denim, Turkey red, or art ticking, are strong and serviceable. Make them to button on. If it is at all possible the family should have at least one meal a day on the gallery. In one house where this was done the enjoyment was a recompense for the extra trouble, and the trouble was minimized as much as possible by the table being placed on the gallery just outside the dining-room window. Everything for the meal was passed out of the window, saving unnecessary steps. A plain deal kitchen table was used. A curtain to shut out sun, wind, or even rain, if necessary, one that draws up with a cord. Matting roller blinds for this purpose are to be had in the shops. A light on the verandah at night makes the evenings available for reading and sewing, but sometimes almost necessitates an entire screening of mosquito veiling. One of the gallery seats, or perhaps the lounge, should be of the box variety, furnishing a receptacle for cushions, rugs, books, etc., where they can be hastily disposed of at night if desired. A hammock bed is a much coveted addition to the verandah furnishings. Plants and vines must not be forgotten in planning the beauty as well as the comfort of this out-door living room, and many little additional comforts and pleasure will suggest themselves as the season passes. Any expense and trouble caused in the preparation of this out-door resort and in its care will be more than repaid when the autumn chill comes again by the many hours of pleasure enjoyed there in sultry days and evenings.

Oyster Sauce for Boiled Poultry.

Place in a saucepan over the fire a small quantity of flour with an equal amount of butter and stir together till it bubbles, then gradually mix in liquor from the oysters that are to be used and enough broth from the poultry to make a sauce of the consistency of cream. Season with salt and white pepper and let boil for a moment, then place the saucepan on the rear of the fire to keep hot till wanted. Then put in the oysters and boil once more. In the meantime dish the poultry, pour a little of the oyster sauce over it and serve the remainder in a boat.

Passé-Partout for Mending.

If you tear a black dress, cut a narrow strip of black passé-partout braid, wet it and paste on the back of the rent. You will find that the dress is mended invisibly. Be careful to draw the edges of the rent closely together. This is especially valuable to persons travelling, as it does not require a hot iron like the ordinary mending tissue. —McCall's Magazine.

Top for Pudding.

After baking a bread pudding, cover the top with marshmallows and put back into the oven until they melt and brown. This forms a delicious mock-meringue top that fills the place of the hard sauce usually served with bread pudding, says Good Housekeeping. Do not place the marshmallows too near the edge of your baking dish or they will stick to it in serving.

Washing Flannel.

It will be found that washing flannels in warm water and then rinsing in cold causes the flannel to shrink. Try washing them in warm water with soap and rinsing in still warmer water, and you will find that this method keeps the flannel from shrinking and preserved its softness.

Patent Leather Shoes.

You can keep your patent leather shoes in good condition by rubbing them with a little olive oil daily and polishing with a soft cloth. By doing this you keep the leather from cracking, and your shoes always appear new.

Salad Boxes.

Make window boxes for the back windows and in them sow thyme, parsley, radish, lettuce, carrot and cucumber seed. Also set out several dozen onion sets.

Fresh bones contain a small quantity of animal matter which is useful for food. They are in their best condition when fresh and unburned. Burning or charring consumes the animal matter and makes them just so much less valuable.
